

WILL GOULDS OPPOSE IT?

Silent About Howard's
Betrothal to Miss Clemmons.

GEORGE WILL NOT TALK.

Family Must Consent or Howard Will Lose
$5,000,000.

A TRUE LOVE MATCH.

Miss Clemmons Would Do Nothing to Bring About Family Discord.

HER MOTHER TALKS AGAIN.

All the Town Is Talking About It and Awaiting the Decision of the Ardent Millionaire's Brothers and Sister with Curiosity.

Palo Alto, Cal., Jan. 15.—Mrs. J. W. Dayan, mother of Katherine Clemmons, reaffirmed to-day the statement of her daughter's engagement to Howard Gould.

"It is not at all strange," she said, "that newspapers can get no confirmation of my statement from the members of Howard Gould's family. They have all very consistently refused to talk for publication about what really concerns them only. They are all very sensitive and are very happy in their family relations. Few multi-millionaires' children manifest as much fraternal love as do the children of Jay Gould. So it is natural they should avoid interviews which might lead to misunderstandings among them."

Mrs. Dayan said further that her daughter and young Gould had not wedded because of the provisions of Jay Gould's will.
Though Howard is of very wealthy, independently of what he would forfeit by disregarding the wishes of others in the family," she said, "one is apt to think twice before taking such a step. He and Miss Clemmons are very happy in their affection for each other, and can afford to wait a while until the members of the family are better disposed. Katherine is a very noble-minded girl, and would not consent to become the cause of estrangement between her betrothed and family, if by waiting such an unhappy condition might be avoided."

Mrs. Dayan gave emphasis to the fact that the silence of the Goulds mean no discredit to her daughter, and expressed confidence that sooner or later Howard Gould and Katherine Clemmons will become man and wife.

Necessarily, the announcement made in the Journal yesterday that Miss Katherine Clemmons is going to marry Howard Gould created the liveliest interest in this city.
He good enough to observe that Miss Clem-mons's name is here first mentioned. That is, of course, simple politeness—"Place to the ladies." But the thoughtless are apt to first mention Howard Gould in speaking of this interesting engagement. For Howard Gould—a manly young fellow, who little cares for money—has the misfortune to be worth $10,000,000, while Miss Clemmons has only her beauty and her ability as an actress.

The announcement of this engagement arose interested the fashionable, the rich and those who pretend, on the stage, to have millions of to marry millions. It really interested every man and woman who understood that it may cost young Howard Gould $5,000,000 to marry the woman of his heart. By the terms of his father's will George Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould and Miss Helen Gould were made his executors and trustees, and the majority of these must give consent to the marriage of their sisters and brothers.

George Gould married Miss Edith King-don, a charming actress, a lovely woman, whom Jay Gould loved not as a daughter-in-law, but as a daughter. Edwin Gould married Miss Shady, a beautiful young woman, the adopted daughter of that distinguished physician and medical writer, Dr. George F. Shady. And Edwin Gould's brothers and sisters welcomed their new sister with open arms. Miss Anna Gould married the young French aristocrat, Count Boniface de Castellane. The men who met this French Count at Newport and in their clubs called him a good fellow. The American women to whom he was introduced nicknamed him "Fowlerpuif." But he was acceptable to Miss Anna Gould's brothers and sisters, and, in good proof, in fine evidence of that he got with his bride a wedding portion of so many millions of francs that De Castellane is now a Gallic Cossack.

How Do Millions Were Left.
Here is an abstract of Jay Gould's will as given by ex-Judge Dillon, counsel for the Western Union Telegraph Company, and one of Jay Gould's personal lawyers:

The executors and trustees named by the will were George J. Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould and Helen M. Gould, with a provision that in case of a vacancy, his son, Frank J. Gould, should become an executor when he should be twenty-one years old, and that if there should be another vacancy it should be filled by his daughter, Anna, when she should become twenty-one years old.

Jay Gould provided "that if any of his children shall marry without the consent of a majority of the executors and trustees, then the share allotted to such child shall be reduced one-half, and the other half of such share shall be transferred to such persons as, under the laws of the State of New York, would take the same if the testator had died without making a will."

The will was so drawn up as to make it impossible for any of the children to take out a large share of his fortune and then defy his brothers and sisters to control him. For not a cent of the vast fortune, other than the income, can be touched.

That's important. Miss Clemmons must know that, and the knowledge proves she is no fortune seeker.

The will first provided for a gift of $5, $500,000 to George J. Gould, and for $500,000 for his grandson and namesake, Jay Gould.

After a few other bequests, such as a house to his daughter Helen and a gift to his relatives, the will provided, in the words of the abstract of Judge Dillon:

"All the rest of his estate is devised and bequeathed to the executors and trustees in trust, first to divide the same into six equal parts or shares, and to hold and invest one of such shares for each of the said children—George J. Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould, Frank J. Gould, Helen M. Gould, and Anna Gould—with authority to collect and receive, pay and apply the income thereof to each child for life, with power to each to dispose of the same by will in favor of issue, and in case of death without issue the share of the one so dying to go to the surviving brothers and sisters and to the issue of any deceased child."

No child can, therefore, divert any portion of the estate; neither can he will it to any one except his own children.

The value of the estate is not known.
When, however, the executors applied for the probate of the will they stated that the real estate of the testator was valued at $2,000,000, and that the estimated value of his personal property was $70,000,000. But it is rarely that heirs in these days when the State collects a heavy tax on inheri-tances, state the full value of the property inherited, any more than they state the full value of their taxable property.

But, even at their own modest valuation, the interest of each child, after deducting the $500,000 left to George Gould and the other bequests, is considerably more than $10,000,000. If, therefore, Howard Gould should persist in marrying Miss Katherine Clemmons without receiving the consent of his brothers and sisters, he will pay for the privilege more than $5,000,000. And this is interesting, too. There are four executors. The majority of four is three.
Naturally Howard Gould favors this marriage. But do his brothers and sisters?

placed by the Journal's treatment of the subject. It was a delicately worded and altogether satisfactory statement.

"Miss Clemmons's appearance here under my backing in 'A Lady of Venice' was a dramatic failure financially. The piece was no good. It was entirely too heavy for her. I think she has great dramatic ability. She is a remarkably beautiful young woman, and dresses exquisitely. I believe she would make a great success in a bright society play. But the most brilliant ac-must not read—but you have read that magnificent play and so you must know that all the miseries of the world come of writing letters. People in love must refrain from writing letters, not only to each other, but to others. Measures of prudence are absolute. Lovers must not write letters to their friends or to strange persons. They must not write them to a body. They must not have even the letters of Chesterfield to his son, or a novel in letters like Clarissa Harlowe.

rumor that Mr. Eckels would become president of the new banking organization.

"He is well equipped to take charge of such a large monetary institution," he said.
"Five million dollars, though, is a large capital as a basis for a bank. It means big taxes, and it is not easy to find profitable investments for an enormous amount of money."

Mr. Eckels, who is now in Chicago in connection with the affairs of the National Bank of Illinois, would not confirm the story of his selection as general manager of the matter. As Comptroller of the United States he draws a salary of $6,000 per year. Should he become general manager of the big trust company, his compensation would be increased fourfold at least.

Nice yesterday, the police made a raid upon the apartments which the couple occupied, upon the strength of information furnished to the police authorities that the Princess was a spy in the employ of the Russian secret service.

The police found no evidence of the woman's connection with the Russian secret service, but in the course of their search found a packet of letters that had been addressed to her by a European monarch, which they seized.
